

Thriving Philanthropy,
Thriving Communities

Princeton Area
COMMUNITY FOUNDATION

Dear Friends,

Looking back, 2017 was an exciting year for the Princeton Area Community Foundation, in no small measure because of YOU!

Thanks to you, we awarded over $20 million in grants to nonprofits. Your Community Foundation is now more than $170 million strong, and working with you to care for our region.

Throughout the pages of this annual report, you'll see more partnerships: our cover features organizations working together to provide teens with jobs at local nonprofits. You will read about a family who collaborates to make their giving meaningful and a nonprofit that teams up with local businesses and schools to ensure that children receive a well-rounded experience.

You'll also learn about our ambitious, new All Kids Thrive agenda. This multi-year initiative aims to transform the lives of children and adolescents living in poverty, but we cannot do it alone. Collaboration is key to accomplishing this goal. More than 230 of our community partners joined us to unveil All Kids Thrive last fall, and we'll announce our grantee partners later this year.

We know there are other needs in our region, and we're committed to them, too. That's why our Community Impact Grants funded nonprofits across a broad range of categories, including career development and literacy, food insecurity and social services.

We also work to strengthen nonprofits and help every philanthropist in our region make informed, high-impact gifts. We have scheduled seminars throughout the year designed to do just that.

It is thanks to you, our generous donors, partners and friends, that we can do such fulfilling work. We look forward to working with you in 2018.

Sincerely,

Jeffrey M. Vega
President & CEO

Anthony J. "Skip" Cimino
Board Chair

What Happens When Kids Miss School?

Kids need to be in school. Research shows students who are chronically absent – missing just 2 days per month, or 10% of the school year – lose opportunities to succeed throughout their lives.

All Kids Thrive

Through All Kids Thrive, we hope to make a difference in the lives of children and adolescents, ages 0 to 25, living in poverty. The program began with discretionary grantmaking, collaboration and education for philanthropists and nonprofits. It will grow to include capacity building and advocacy.

Our All Kids Thrive grants will be awarded to organizations working to make a positive impact on chronic absenteeism and student performance.

Our goal is to strengthen and insulate the educational pipeline: On one measure of child well-being — education — Mercer County ranks 19th out of 21 counties.¹ We must do better. Our children deserve nothing less.

Shawn and Robbie Ellsworth

Giving Back to the Community

For Shawn and Robbie Ellsworth, philanthropy has always been about collaboration.

For years, three generations – the couple, their children and Robbie’s mother – held family meetings to discuss their charitable giving through the family’s foundation named after Robbie’s mother, Martha L.A. Norris.

Now that they have rolled that private foundation into a Donor Advised Fund at the Princeton Area Community Foundation (where they already had another fund, the Rosso-Maguire Fund, named in honor of Shawn’s cousins), their collaboration has expanded.

Their association with the Community Foundation gives them a chance to learn much more about the needs of the community and the nonprofits serving the region, as well as the ability to chat with other fundholders about their charitable goals and initiatives.

As the Princeton couple gains a deeper understanding about poverty in this region, they believe it will take partnerships to make a significant impact.

“We learned it’s going to take a collaboration of fundholders like ourselves and the Community Foundation making grants and others piggybacking on that to make a difference,” said Shawn, a Community Foundation Trustee.

Donor Advised Funds offer tax benefits, flexibility, strong investment management and access to professional grantmakers.

“We learned it’s going to take a collaboration of fundholders like ourselves and the Community Foundation making grants and others piggybacking on that to make a difference,” - Shawn Ellsworth

Establishing funds at the Community Foundation has helped the Ellsworths focus their philanthropy and learn more about poverty in this region. “Our association with the Community Foundation made it much more apparent to us,” Robbie said of the prevalence of poverty in Mercer County. “It’s driven it home.”

"It takes kids off the streets and makes them focus on something to do." - Alfred Kandakai, 16

A Grantee Partner

National Junior Tennis & Learning of Trenton

Alfred Kandakai's father taught him how to play tennis at a refugee camp in Ghana, where the pair fled because of civil war in their native Liberia.

When he moved to his mom's Trenton home about four years ago, his stepfather suggested he join National Junior Tennis & Learning of Trenton, Inc. (NJTLT), a program that began in 1975 and now reaches about 2,500 local children each year.

"I think it's good because it gives lots of kids the opportunity to do better," Alfred, 16, said. "It takes kids off the streets and makes them focus on something to do."

While NJTLT has produced tennis standouts, it's the organization's focus on schoolwork and life skills that make this program popular in the city. Princeton University students mentor players; the organization has partnered with Bloomberg LP's Startup program to provide career-readiness programming to the youngsters; and over the last four years, graduates of its elite Arthur Ashe Student Athlete program have been awarded more than $400,000 in college scholarships.

NJTLT has been the recipient of Community Foundation grants for three years in a row.

Alfred is a senior at the city's high school and hopes to secure a college tennis scholarship. He said he learned leadership skills at NJTLT and noted players must maintain a 3.0 grade point average. Yet, it was NJTLT's executive director who explained that Alfred is ranked as the #1 singles player at his school and has won a number of tournaments.

"All these children are modest," said Deborah Frazier. "He's one of our stars."

Alfred said the program gives teens a chance to make new friends. Through the program, participants also receive equipment, including rackets, bags and sneakers.

"They do everything for you," he said. "Whatever you need, they try to help you. You just have to be respectful, stay humble and try your best. They'll provide everything for you. You just have to show up."

Bold type designates endowed funds set up to support our communities today and forever.

Jeremy Perlman created the NextGen Giving Circle at the Princeton Area Community Foundation to help young people make a difference in the community.

“Through this Giving Circle, young professionals can get introduced to philanthropy and learn about nonprofits in the area,” said Jeremy, an Account Executive at Borden Perlman Insurance in Ewing. “And we can start developing the next generation of givers in our community.”

Anyone can join, but most members will be in the 20- to 40-year-old age range. Donors can make an annual gift or contribute monthly.

“I think people aren’t sure how to get involved in philanthropy,” he said. “Through the Giving Circle, you can give a modest amount, but still be part of big gifts.”

Learn more or join the Giving Circle: contact Elizabeth Wagner at 609.219.1800 ext. 12 and ewagner@pacf.org or Diana Leighton at 609.219.1800 ext. 13 and dleighton@pacf.org.

When Norm and Nancy Klath retired, the Princeton couple knew they wanted to give back to the community. That eventually led them to create a Donor Advised Fund at the Princeton Area Community Foundation.

“There could not be a better place to have manage your funds,” he said. “I was certainly attracted to the Donor Advised Fund for the convenience and efficiency for major gifts. It’s easy to put money in and easy to recommend donations. I appreciate that. I make a phone call when I want to do something and it gets done.”

Donating appreciated stock is simple and gives the couple a tax advantage.

“You only have to do it one time a year, as opposed to every time you make an individual gift, so it’s a very efficient way to manage your charitable deduction,” Norm said. “It’s very convenient. We make one or two stock transfers a year and just dole it out as we set our philanthropic goals.”

*This list includes all gifts to the Community Foundation's Annual Fund. It also includes other gifts of $1,000 or more to funds held at the Community Foundation. If we have made an error or omission, please accept our apologies and notify us.

We guide our donors through important decisions about where and how to give, and we make sure their money accomplishes the most it can – both today and into the future.

The Community Foundation provides:

- A deep understanding of community needs
- Unbiased, well-informed insights about local nonprofits
- Expert advice on how to handle complex, multigenerational gifting
- The guidance and administrative support you need to make your giving simple

Investing on Your Behalf

Charitable dollars are precious and powerful. Community Foundation Trustees manage your gifts carefully, because assets earned and generously given away are a solemn trust.

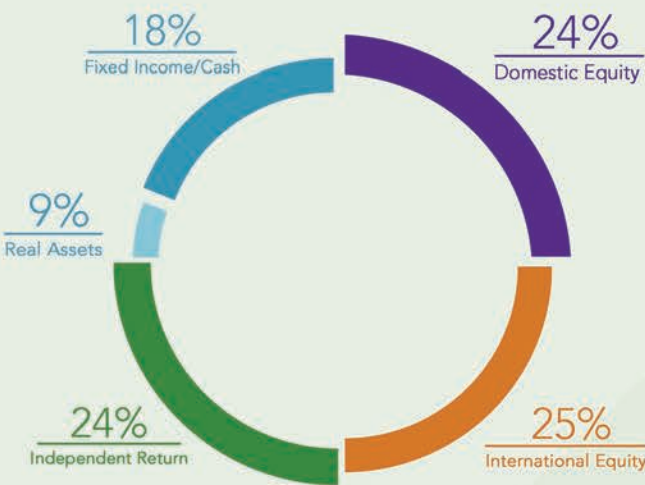

Our philosophy is to be:

FOREVER – We have a constantly forward-rolling investment horizon that looks 40 years into the future.

BALANCED – We are committed to an asset allocation that matches our long-term goals and manages risk with a diversified investment pool.

DISCIPLINED – Today’s market events do not change our outlook; our Investment Committee plans for the long term.
