Dear Friends,

As Community Foundation trustees, we could not be prouder to serve at the helm of this remarkable organization. In this book, you will see what we have been working on for the last year, and we are sure you will agree: it has been a year of good ideas, big changes, and opportunities to reach for new challenges.

Now a community asset of over $100 million, the Community Foundation is designed to care for our region now and in the future and to help our nonprofit colleagues do their best work. We could not have built this remarkable resource without a strong board, exceptional donors, committed volunteers, and a dedicated staff.

Throughout this report, you will see five words appear frequently: COURAGEOUS, CREATIVE, FAIR, GENEROUS, AND LASTING. They are our values. Community Foundation trustees are committed to keeping these five principles at the core of all we do. On every page, you will see them reflected in our work. We hope they inspire you, too.

If you care about giving, about providing opportunities for those with the fewest resources in our region, teaching your values to your children and grandchildren, maximizing your annual donations, or making a once-in-a-lifetime contribution on which you need expert advice, come talk with us. We aim to make everyone in central New Jersey a savvy philanthropist, optimizing the time, talent and treasure you have to give. Please join us!

Sincerely yours,

David R. Scott, Esq.

Vincent and Sonia Canterelli inspire their families

“Having our philanthropy under the Community Foundation’s watchful umbrella lets us do the fun stuff. We get to focus on our fundraising, and we have the freedom to pick our grants. The support is amazing.”

– Catherine Goldan

The Canterelli sisters, Mary Lisa Costello and Catherine Goldan, together with their husbands and children, wanted to honor their parents while building upon the values that Vince and Sonia Canterelli lived by. “The idea came quickly after the loss of both our parents,” says Mary Lisa. “We were referred to the Community Foundation and have been there from the beginning. It has worked out beautifully.”

Both sisters say that their passion comes from their parents. “They were good, caring people,” says Catherine. “If you could help, you never said no. They donated money, they did charitable and civic work, but they went beyond that. They offered people comfort, understanding, a kind word. They were always supportive, whether to a friend, family member, acquaintance, colleague, or a neighbor. This was simply their nature - it’s all we knew.”

The effect of all this on their families? Catherine says, “We often default to, ‘What would mom and dad do?’ And our kids are learning the values we grew up by.” Mary Lisa adds, “Our dad spoke at each of our weddings. He said, ‘What we wish for Mary Lisa and Joe and Catherine and Keith is that they have kids just like ours.’ That was our parents’ wish for us. And now, with children of our own, we often say to each other, what we wish for our kids, is that they have parents just like ours.”

For the full story of this remarkable family’s giving, see www.pacf.org/canterelli.
Since she was ten years old, Diane Dixon was devoted to the performing arts. She started the Theater Guild of New Jersey, promoting unknown actors and giving undiscovered playwrights the chance to see their work performed. When Diane died in 2001, her will established the Diane Dixon Fund at the Community Foundation to continue her lifelong work of bringing the arts into people’s lives.

Her friend Lydia Kugler, executor of Diane’s will, says, “The Community Foundation was incredibly responsive. I sat down with them and talked about Diane’s love for theater. They were genuinely interested in getting to know what Diane was all about.”

The Community Foundation found an extraordinary drama program at Robbinsville High School. It invites young performers and audience members of all ages to fall in love with the performing arts, and seemed the perfect fit. Her fund has made annual grants to the drama club ever since.

“Diane was born and raised in Robbinsville,” Lydia says. “She was instrumental in seeing that the new Senior Center in Washington Township would have a stage for performances and would welcome the arts. She wanted to make a name for the arts in New Jersey. Diane didn’t have time to do all that on her own, but the Community Foundation is going to make sure that it happens. And she is smiling about that, I can tell you right now.”
The Fund for Women and Girls is a community of people who care about Mercer County’s girls and the women who raise them. A shared sense of purpose urges us forward. Fund members learn together in seminars and directly with nonprofit leaders working with girls, and use the resulting knowledge to choose grant recipients annually.

The membership has discovered the power of giving jointly, and we have committed to increase our grants in recent years. In early 2014 the Fund made grants of $115,885 to six local programs – the largest-ever round of grants in the Fund’s history (see list at right).

Why give more? We are spurred on by thought leaders in the field, including Pamela Shifman of the NoVo Foundation, who challenged us to recognize women’s potential to change entire societies at our luncheon in October 2013. We see the opportunity to help in our own community, where we have identified specific areas of need among girls and women: domestic violence, leadership and mentoring, and sexual education. We direct our funding and all of our energies toward those priorities.

Our membership, more than one hundred strong, is a powerful champion of girls and women. Members attribute their passion to learning alongside like-minded people.

We invite you to join us.

Tribute to Liz Gray Erickson (1968 – 2014)

Liz chaired the Fund for Women and Girls’ Leadership Team beginning in 2010, and her passion for its mission drew scores of people to the Fund’s work. She was also an active and diligent member of our Board of Trustees and Grants Committee, where her voice for social justice was unwavering. Liz challenged us to look beyond the next goal, to aim for more. She invested her own time and energy deeply, and attracted other tireless advocates to our work. Thanks to Liz, we have bigger dreams for our community.

Most of all, she was our friend: warm, generous, always ready to help.
Grantee Highlights

Intersect Fund

The Intersect Fund is a nonprofit micro-lender and business development organization that makes small loans and trains entrepreneurs to open and run their businesses effectively. Working together with the East Trenton Collaborative they offer services in the city and across the county. The Fund has earned the Community Foundation’s confidence in its ability to make and support loans that result in impressive outcomes.

Urban Promise Trenton

Urban Promise is an after-school and summer program with a proven track record of building life skills in teens, and motivating students of all ages to succeed. It was brought to Trenton from its roots in Camden by a young man whose personal success came from the support he received. The Community Foundation supported the Trenton start-up, and is pleased with its progress and expansion.

Young Audiences

The state’s largest and most comprehensive arts education organization, Young Audiences focuses on children in grades pre-K through 12, offering three core services: performances, workshops for students, and professional training for teachers. The Community Foundation supports YA knowing that arts education reaches every child, including reluctant learners, and leads to better attendance and reduced dropout rates, while encouraging nimble and creative thinkers and engaged students.

Shiloh Freedom School

The Freedom School uses a national model developed by the Children’s Defense Fund to steep 3rd through 9th grade students in literacy during the summer to arrest learning declines and prepare students for the next school year. The program requires parents to attend weekly meetings with school staff. The Community Foundation values the rigor of the program, its strong relationships with local schools, and its positive outcomes.

Strong bonds build healthy communities

The Community Foundation believes that the strength of social networks and the ways they motivate people to do things for and with each other help us tackle problems, take advantage of opportunities, and undertake activities that benefit everyone.

Research shows that communities with strong connections have higher educational achievement, better performing governments, faster economic growth, less crime, and less violence. People who live in these communities report being happier and healthier, and living longer.

The Community Foundation identifies projects that develop these social networks and uses them to address problems and opportunities in planning, economic development, civic engagement, philanthropy, volunteerism, care of the environment, and the arts, among others. We seek out activities that bring people together to explore and address barriers to relating to each other.

Here are a few stories about work we support:

The Citizens Campaign

Believing that citizens must play a vital role in directing the way government operates, the Citizens Campaign provides training and tools for successful citizen engagement. They have created an effective, nonpartisan, citizen-led approach to developing practical solutions. Reaching people through civic associations, churches, and service agencies the Citizens Campaign encourages residents to see themselves as capable of having an impact on their shared civic life.

Artworks

Artworks involves the community in visual art. Its Art All Night brings together hundreds of volunteers to plan and run a 24-hour art event showcasing the talents of over 1,000 artists of every age and from every corner of Mercer County, and drawing 30,000 visitors.
people to Trenton. Similarly, Art All Day maps art installations, studios and galleries across the city and sends art lovers out to explore together.

Center for Supportive Schools (CSS)

The Campaign Connect project encourages New Jersey schools to become safer, more supportive, and engaging. CSS has built a network of educators, community leaders, students and parents to create safe and supportive schools. Connected schools lead to greater academic achievement for students, reduced bullying, and lower dropout rates. Piloted in Mercer County with the support of the Community Foundation, the project is expanding across the state.

Isles – Mill One

Mill One is an historic former textile mill and warehouse located in the Bromley neighborhood of Hamilton, on the Trenton border. With partners, Isles envisions a mixed-use property, combining business, living space, artists’ studios, and a nonprofit center with offices, public meeting space, and shared services. This hybrid development project in a distinctive location will include unique co-location opportunities and creative community building.

Trenton Area Stakeholders

Trenton Area Stakeholders creates a diverse network of community leaders who work together to initiate and sustain efforts that have a positive impact on the youth and families of Mercer County. Members discuss mutual concerns and opportunities for collaboration. No other group brings together this critical mix of nonprofit professionals, funders, government representatives, and concerned individuals.

Community Foundation resources are managed differently than personal assets, retirement accounts, or the cash a business invests to cover near-term expenses. Here are three key differences:

1. A very long horizon. The Community Foundation’s endowment pool doesn’t have a life expectancy. It won’t retire in 5, 10, or 25 years. Rather, it has a forward-rolling investment perspective that is constantly looking 40 years or more into the future.

2. Our commitment to an asset allocation plan. Set and monitored by our Investment Committee, the allocation guides us in keeping our investments diversified to mitigate risk. See our asset allocation at right.

3. We have the discipline to rebalance our portfolio in all market conditions. When any one asset class gets too high, we sell and transfer a portion of that value to a class that is below its target. Easier said than done, because this approach requires us to operate contrary to prevailing markets. But it translates into “Buy Low, Sell High.”

The Legacy Society
A charitable legacy is a gift left for others. It can provide a helping hand to people whose names you will never know, to organizations you admire, to issues you care about.
What do you love about your community? What would you like to preserve for future generations?
Philanthropy offers valuable estate planning advantages and allows you to create a lasting legacy for the public good.
We honor and thank all those contributing to a Community Foundation fund through a will, trust, or other future gift:

We’re a learning organization

Gathering together to learn and give

The Community Foundation is the place where generous and civic-minded people meet others who share their interests, learn together, and tackle problems that seem unsolvable. It’s our job to share know-how and help them connect.

Here are the topics we explored with others in 2013 to advance our understanding.

For Donors:

• What Nonprofits Want Their Donors to Know
• What Story Does the IRS Form 990 Tell?
• Taxes, Timing, and All That Mail: Strategies for Year-End Giving
• Investment Seminar with Andrew K. Golden, Princeton University Investment Company

For Nonprofits:

• The Fundraising Board with Laura Otten, LaSalle University
• Path to Impact: Core Capacity Assessment project kick-off with John Brothers, Quidoo Consulting
• Building Better Nonprofit Websites

For Professional Advisors:

• The 2013 Tax Landscape: Opportunities for Charitable Clients

Fund for Women & Girls:

• The Art and Science of Grantmaking
• Cultivating Generosity as a Family Value: A Panel Discussion
• Annual Grantmaking Meeting
• Strong Women = Strong Communities: Investing in Girls Transforms the World, with Pamela Shifman, NoVo Foundation
How can we help?

Have you been wanting to do something charitable?
The Community Foundation is here for you. You can come see us to...

- Have an informal conversation or think out loud
- Tap our knowledge about what’s going on in your area of interest
- Organize your giving in one place
- Move from checkbook charity to a more intentional approach
- See more happen with what you have available to give
- Honor a loved one
- Find other generous people who share your interests

We can design a fund that’s right for you.

It’s simple
Creating a fund takes just a few minutes. You can donate a variety of assets (including cash, stock, real estate). Clear reports and online access help you keep track of your giving.

It’s flexible
There’s a fund for every donor. Your fund can even be completely anonymous.

It expresses your values
You can designate organizations or issues to support. A fund can meet urgent needs now, build a legacy, or both.

It’s efficient
We take care of all the administrative work. You set your financial and philanthropic goals, and we’ll make sure they are met.

It’s brilliant
Building a charitable fund at the Community Foundation has unique advantages. A dollar in becomes more than a dollar out, over time.
